The "Star" to Be Issued Tomo

Eighteen-Page Form

The Star will be issued tomorrow in eighteen-page form. The enlargement will ford space for much attractive reading matter, many features having been prepared especially for this number. Its contents will include timely articles on subjects now before the public, good literary selections, descriptive sketches of notable places and nstitutions, personal gossip and information about men of the times, in fact, matter on a great variety of interesting topics, all going to make an unusually readable paper. In addition to the rich array of "good reading" in the extra pages. The Star will present as usual the complete news of the day, at home and abroad, treated with the fullness that has given it a place in the front rank of the great newspapers of the day. Among the special features of the paper the following may be until 9 o'clock we shall make an exhibition of our gatherings from the universe. Our object is two-fold. We want you to see the greater store-we want you to promenade through its spacious floors-and view under the brilliant illumination the magnificent array of wearable delicacies. We want you to see the store-"ready for business." The cash carriers will be idle-our corps of assistants will preside over their respective departments—ready to answer you questions -our floor managers will greet you and pilot you about the house. And we will stand with willing ears ready to hear your criticisms. A pardonable pride tells us they will be commendatory. We shall expect youjust for an hour or two of neighborly so-
